

The California State Library (www.library.ca.gov), a California public research institution established in 1850, serves California by quickly and accurately providing the state's elected officials, government employees, California libraries, and members of the general public with the information they need. The California State Library's services are diverse and include:

- Providing a central reference and research library for state government and the Legislature;
- Providing non-partisan research to the Legislature and the Governor;
- Collecting, preserving, generating and disseminating information ranging from California's priceless historical items to today's online texts;
- Providing consultation and technical assistance to California's public libraries, and directing state and federal funds to support local public libraries and statewide library programs and services.

The statewide Transforming Life After 50 Initiative was made possible with funding from the U.S. Institute of Museum and Library Services under the provision of the Library Services and Technology Act (LSTA) administered in California by the State Librarian.
